Dive into your summer reading

We hope you're enjoying your summer and getting some R&R with family and friends.

This month we bring you something for your summer reading list. It's a little "light" reading on provider-sponsored health plans and integrated delivery systems. Not to toot our own horn, but we're one of the main health systems covered in the report. So you can learn more about the why, what and how we do things at Innovation Health to change lives every day in the Northern Virginia area.

Wishing you a safe, happy and healthy summer.

In good health,
Dave Notari, CEO

Focused on you: providing high-quality care at a lower cost

The well-renowned Robert Wood Johnson Foundation recently released an in-depth report titled, "Analysis of Integrated Delivery Systems and New Provider-Sponsored Health Plans." Because of the Affordable Care Act and other trends in local markets, the health care landscape is changing. Health systems in the U.S. have formed dozens of new health insurance companies, or acquired existing plans, since 2010.

Care to know

The report examined the goals of these health systems entering the health insurance business. Through interviews, data analysis and case study research, the author asked questions like:

- Are the new health plans growing and moving toward profitability?
- Are they having an impact on competition, cost and quality in their markets?

Innovation Health was proud to be a part of this project. Interviewed were our CEO Dave Notari, COO Amy Turner and several other members of the Inova team. The research team also talked with academics, consultants and others with specialized knowledge of the strategies that provider systems are pursuing.

The result was a thorough and thoughtful report. We'd like to share it with you. Click on the link below to download and read the full report. Happy reading.
